

Kalakriti, the art and photography club of JSS medical college takes immense gratitude to conduct events for the club members and engage them in art and photography and admits their busy lives of MBBS, giving a platform for every individual to showcase their talents and learn a few more.

The July '21 Frostbite Sketching Competition

It was a captivating online event that aimed to bring some liveliness to the lockdown period. It was the first of its kind organized during the lockdown, offering artists a platform to reminisce about their middle school memories and weave magic with their brushes. The competition revolved around the poems of renowned poet Robert Frost, evoking nostalgic emotions and inspiring participants to create stunning artwork.

Themes:

The competition encompassed five enchanting themes, each drawing inspiration from Robert Frost's timeless poems. The themes were carefully selected to ignite the participants' imagination and tap into their unique interpretations of Frost's works. The themes included:

- A Time to Talk
- Acquainted with the Night
- The Road Not Taken
- Stopping by the Woods on a Snowy Evening
- Fire and Ice

Participation and Artistic Expression:

The participants were brimming with excitement as they embarked on the creative journey of bringing Frost's poems to life through their sketches. Each artist embraced the challenge with enthusiasm, pouring their hearts and souls into their artwork. The competition provided a canvas for artists to showcase their distinct perspectives and understanding of the poems.

The artworks submitted by the participants were nothing short of awe-inspiring. Each piece revealed a different facet of the artist's interpretation and connection to the poems. From intricate details to imaginative compositions, the participants demonstrated their artistic prowess and their ability to translate emotions into strokes of a brush. The artworks beautifully captured the essence of Frost's poetry, enveloping viewers in a world of nostalgia and contemplation.

October'21 inktober

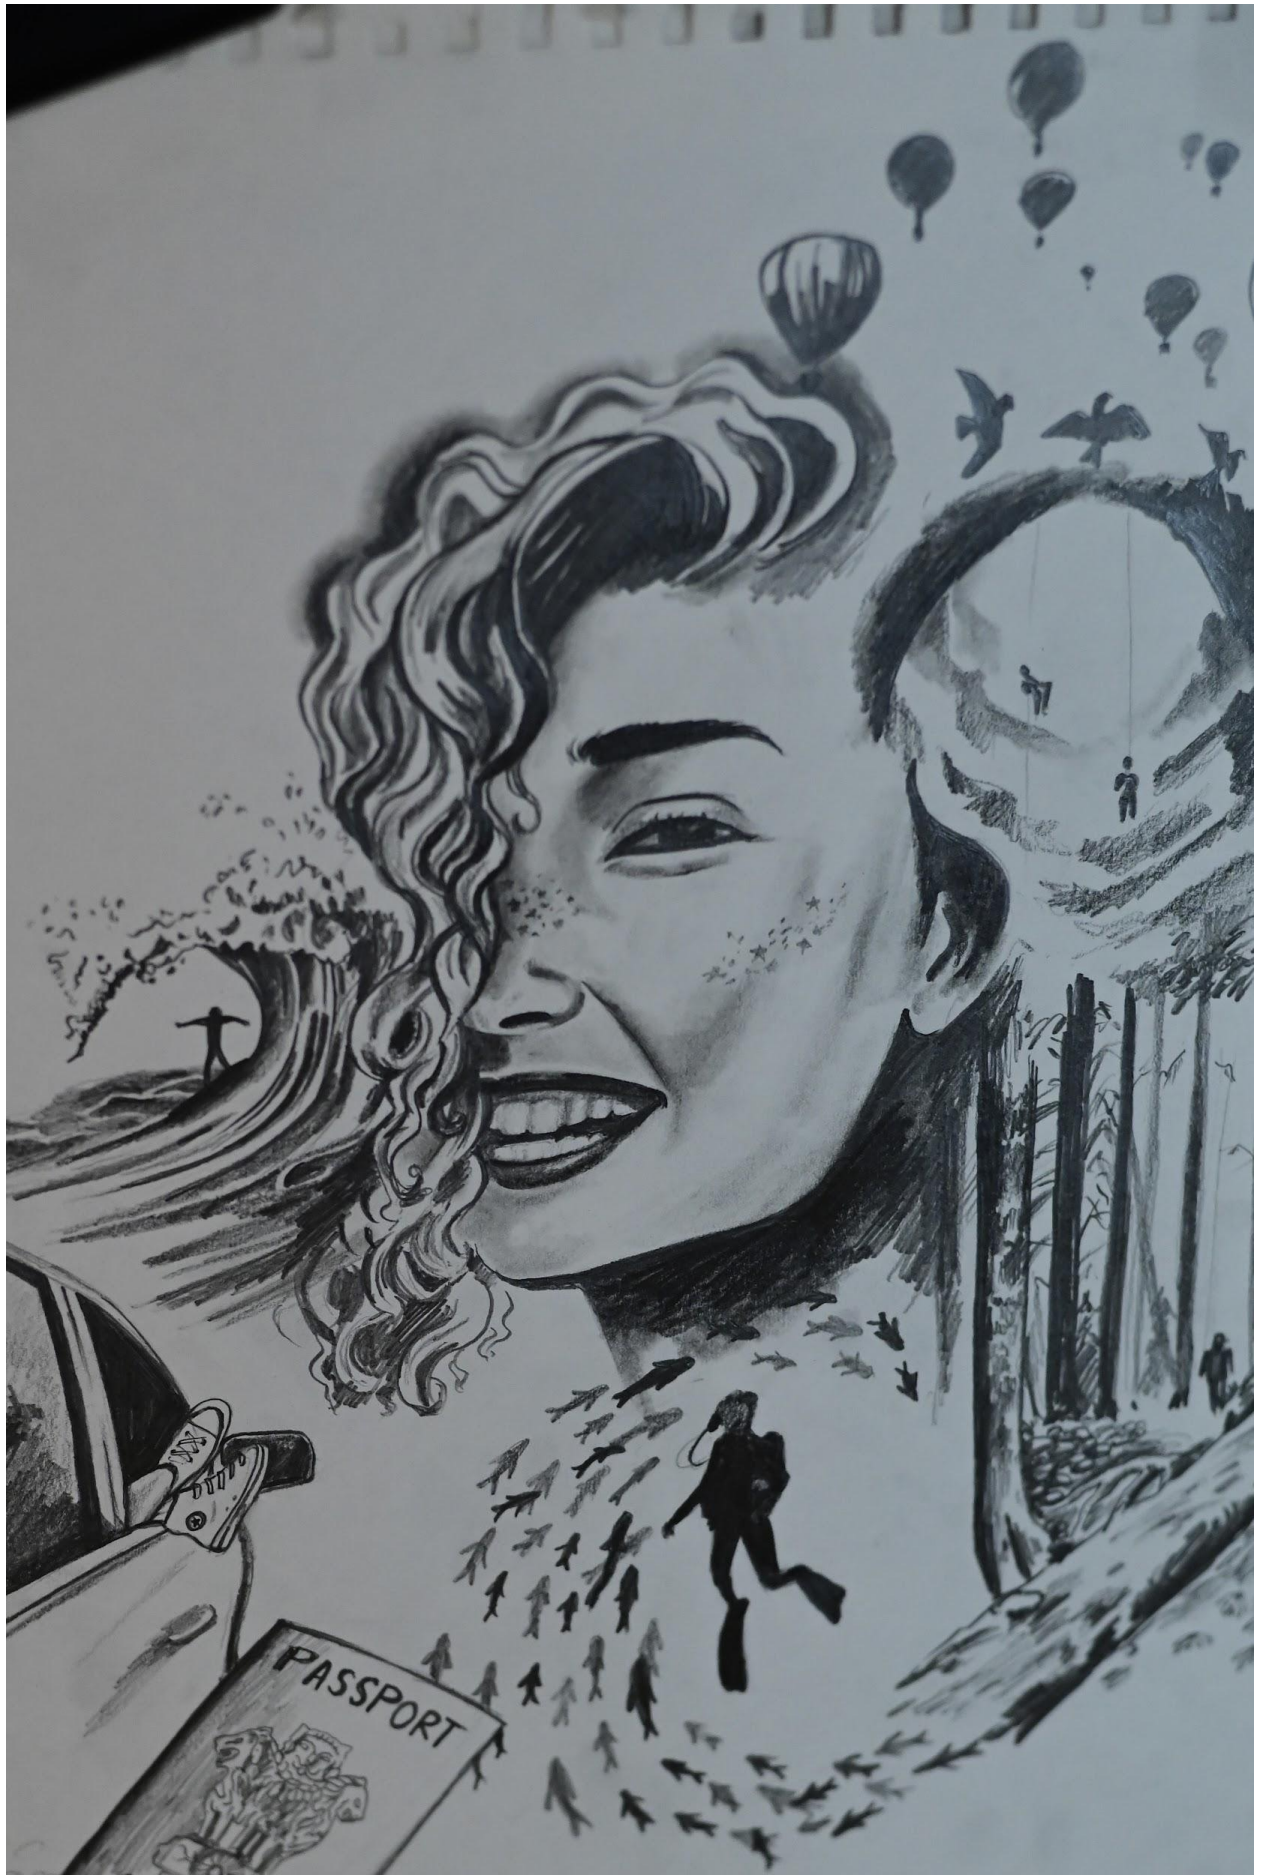

Inktober is a month long drawing competition challenge to improve inking skills and develop positive drawing habits where ink drawing is made everyday and shared on social media. It's an age-old yearly traditional October art event, where participants are given a prompt list for each day of October, to engage our artists throughout October. The participants come up with different ways to express their thoughts through these themes. The rules are fairly relaxed. It's all about creativity and consistency.

Tatvam'22

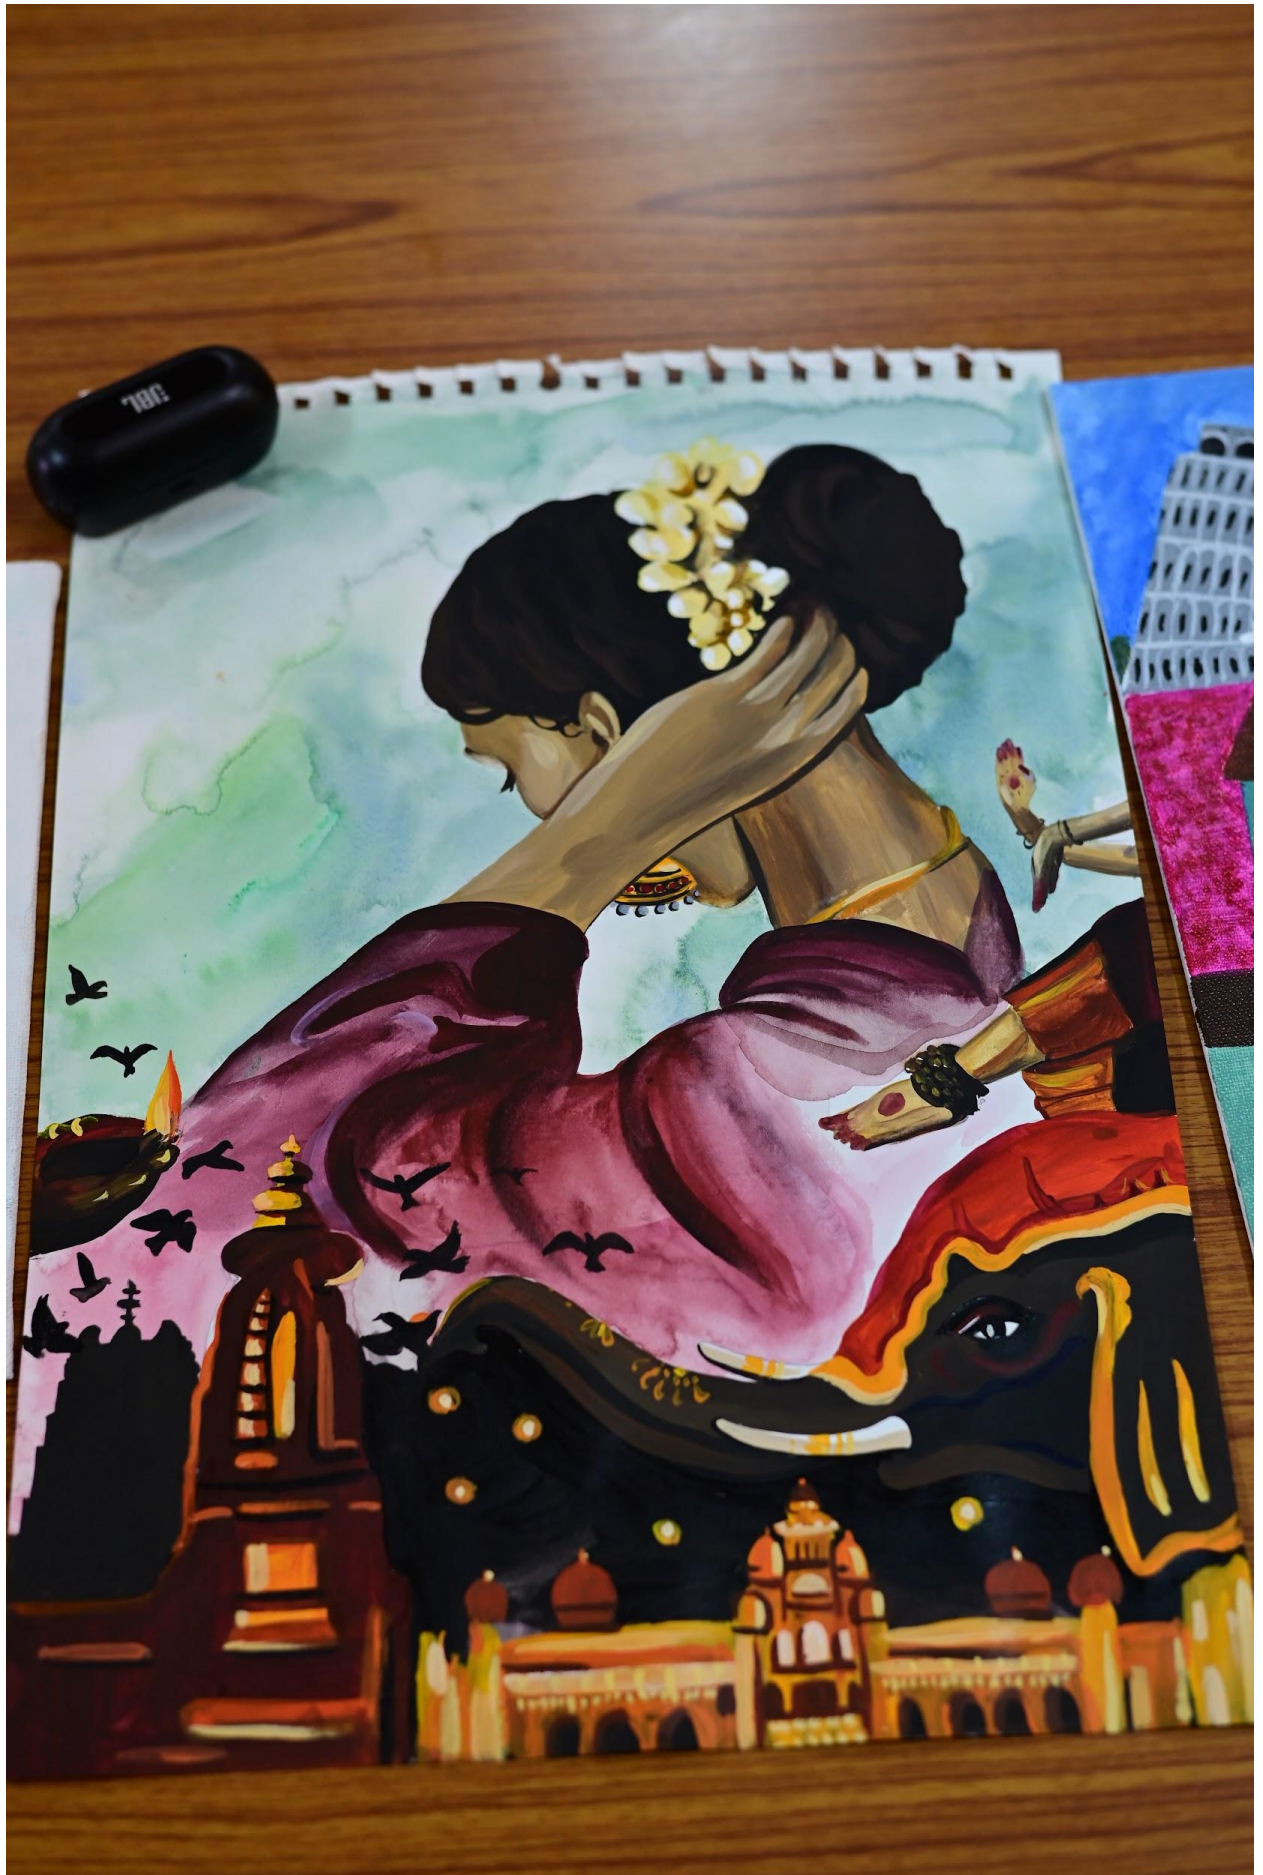

1. Suketchi/ Sketching

The sketching competition witnessed a remarkable display of artistic talent. Participants demonstrated their ability to create captivating sketches using a variety of mediums, including graphite, charcoal, and ink. The themes varied from portraits and landscapes to abstract interpretations. The intricate details and imaginative concepts showcased by the participants were truly impressive.

2. Lhazo/ Painting

The painting competition showcased a vibrant array of colors and styles. Artists utilized acrylics, oils, watercolors, and mixed media to bring their ideas to life on canvas. The themes explored in this competition ranged from still life and nature to abstract and contemporary concepts. The participants' ability to evoke emotions and convey powerful messages through their paintings left the audience in awe.

3. Kasuri/ Tshirt painting

- The T-shirt painting competition provided artists with a unique canvas to showcase their skills. Participants used fabric paints and markers to transform plain white T-shirts into artistic masterpieces. The themes chosen were diverse, with participants incorporating elements such as nature, pop culture, and abstract designs into their creations. The competition resulted in a stunning display of wearable art.

4. Doodling

The doodling competition highlighted the beauty of spontaneous and imaginative artwork. Artists utilized pens, markers, and pencils to create intricate patterns, characters, and designs. The doodles showcased a wide range of themes, including fantasy, surrealism, and everyday life. The participants' ability to transform a blank canvas into a captivating doodle was truly inspiring.

5. Art Attack

- The Art Attack event was a unique and exciting experience that challenged participants to put on their thinking caps and embrace their creativity. The organizers devised a fun and engaging concept where participants had to utilize recyclable waste to create exquisite artworks. It was a brilliant collaboration of teamwork, ideas, and resourcefulness, as participants had to think outside the box and transform waste materials into remarkable pieces of art.

The event kicked off with participants rushing to gather limited supplies of recyclable waste, creating an adrenaline-fueled atmosphere. This added an element of excitement and competition to the event, as teams had to strategize and make quick decisions about which items to choose wisely. The limited availability of materials required participants to use their judgment and think critically about how they could repurpose each item effectively.

One of the most intriguing aspects of the Art Attack event was witnessing the different perceptions and interpretations of a single theme. Each team approached the challenge with their own unique perspective, resulting in a diverse range of artworks. It was fascinating to see how quick minds and thoughts translated into creative masterpieces using unconventional materials.

Throughout the event, participants demonstrated exceptional creativity and resourcefulness. They combined various waste materials, such as cardboard, plastic bottles, newspaper, and discarded objects, to craft visually stunning artworks. The transformation of these waste items into something beautiful and meaningful was truly remarkable.

The Art Attack event not only promoted sustainability and the importance of recycling but also showcased the limitless possibilities of artistic expression. Participants showcased their artistic skills, imagination, and ability to think on their feet. It was inspiring to see how recyclable waste, which is often overlooked, can be repurposed to create thought-provoking and visually captivating artworks.

6. Tatvam Photography

The Tatvam Photography competition celebrated the art of capturing moments through the lens. Participants were tasked with capturing subjects that conveyed emotions, told stories, or highlighted the beauty of the world around us. The participants' keen eye for composition and ability to evoke emotions through their images were commendable.

7. Photography themed

The themed photography competition provided participants with the opportunity to explore a specific theme or concept through their photographs. Themes ranged from love and nature to social issues and cultural diversity. The participants' ability to capture the essence of the theme and convey it through their photographs was truly remarkable.

8.Short film

The short film making competition showcased participants' storytelling abilities through the medium of film. Participants crafted compelling narratives, exploring a variety of genres and themes. The films exhibited creativity in screenplay writing, cinematography, and editing. The participants' ability to evoke emotions and convey messages through their short films was commendable.

9.Reelside'23 june

It's a reel making competition for participants, they need to make a reel not more than 40 secs on the theme : life through your lens.